

Teacher Time!

Introduction: In school today, many people distinguish themselves by what they wear, what they say, what they do, and how they think. Think about your friends. Is this true of them? Do you and your friends dress similarly? Do you and your friends have “inside jokes” that someone would have to be part of your “group” to get? You probably do. Now, we know there’s much more to you than these things, but to an outsider, it probably seems like there are certain ways to dress and act to be a part of your group. Today, you’ll get a chance to brainstorm on what TEACHERS – as a group - do to distinguish THEMSELVES! Remember, people are more complex than they sometimes seem, so we should be careful of stereotyping, but let’s think about the things TEACHERS often do.

Instructions: Below, list as many characteristics of the things you think TEACHERS generally wear, say, and do to distinguish themselves!
